The Church vs. Intemperance.

While intemperance is a sin, and one greatly to be deplored, and for which we have no drinking church member does more injury excuse or defense to offer, still there are to the cause of temperance than twenty other sins that creep into the church, and are brought in, fostered and nourished by its members, far more insidious and harmful.

Taxation of Patience.

The Gazette seems to find constant employment in supervising and instructing the town officers of Bloomfield. We are informed by a constant reader of that paper that the burden of complaint and discussion of late has been the assessorship; and he lugubriously fears the same will be kept up for a month or so longer.

We noticed ourself, from a cursory glance over the local page of last week's issue, that space was largely given up to this matter of educating the town assessor. A communicationist contributed a quart (so to "good measure," there was furnished, editorially, a gallon or so more, which filled a the boarding-house chap, diving in vain for dumplings in his soup, that we concluded not to risk a repetition of his experiencehence only speak definitely as to quantity.

But there was something else served up in a little more appetizing shape-as a kind of ragout. It was a dialect "Pome"-a la Bret Harte. It had evidently been cooked in the same kitchen, and, doubtless intended their songs will undoubtedly be one of the to be an excessively funny lampoon upon the Town Committee, to whom it was dedicated. Not deeply versed in linguistic lore, we failed to appreciate its many points. There was a monotonous, spasmodic refrain as a wind-up to each stanza, the whole being gramme. It is hoped that this celebration suggestive of a Montana mud volcano, throwing up stones and rubbish to a considerable height-a curious but rather harmless phenomenon.

The "constant reader," mentioned above, tells us this is not to be the last poetic upheaval. Tract Society Anniversary.

The sixteenth Anniversary of the Bloomfield Union Tract Society was held last Sabbath evening in the First Presbyterian church and was largely attended. The President, Rev.
